

ROCKEFELLER GETS $114 A MINUTE FROM OIL.

Henry H. Rogers and John D. Archbold, the two operative heads of the Standard Oil Trust, are authorities for the statement that Mr. Rockefeller's income from this source alone this year will be $60,000,000. This would mean that each day of the year Mr. Rockefeller's income is $164,383.53. Every hour of the twenty-four he piles up $6,840.93, or $114 a minute.

DREADED MAFIA SHOOT ANOTHER VICTIM TO BITS

Short-Barrelled Gun and Slugs Used as in New Orleans.

SLAIN PLAYING CARDS.

Murderer Marked Target in Door and Then Coolly Waited for Victim.

Men wise in the workings of the mental processes of Italian criminals are beginning to ask themselves, since the assassination of Salvatore Steriozza early this day, following as closely upon the heels of another killing of exactly the same type, if it can be true that the dreaded Mafia has at last got a foothold among the Sicilian marauders of New York? For the Mafia chooses to kill its appointed victims with slugs from a shot gun rather than with the handy knife of the conventional Black Hand.

Although these Mafia guns have never been seen in New York, it appears almost certain that one of them was used to kill Guiliano less than a week ago, and that a similar type of weapon, possibly the same one and directed by the same hand, sent the charge of slugs that riddled poor Steriozza early to-day.

Killed While Playing Cards.

It was long after midnight and business was dull in Steriozza's saloon. In a little room just back of the bar he was playing solitaire with a worn deck of cards. Across the table sat a young Italian barber, who had engaged him in conversation. Behind him was the door, which was drawn the target. He heard a noise in the front of the bar, and, thinking there was a customer within, got up to wait on him. As he drew himself up his heart was directly in front of the target.

A shot from an unknown direction shattered his left side. Another reached the neck, and he fell to the floor with his wounds in his chest. His breast was peppered with bird shot and his heart had been torn away by the heavy slugs. He did not utter so much as a sigh.

Only One Witness.

The young man with the saloon-keeper ran into the street, where he was met by Policeman Kramer, of the Eldridge street station, who took him back to the scene. All he would say was that Steriozza was lonely and had invited him in for a drink. While they were seated together the victim pondered over his cards. After the murder the barber went out to inform the police, he said. He said he was John Marchina, of No. 155 Chrystie street. On his person were found numbers of pawn tickets.

The theory that the murder was committed for robbery was done away with when the police found $37 in the dead man's pockets. A dozen Italians of the neighborhood looked at the place as he was being led away. They viewed the body, muttering words in their native tongue and went their way. The victim was peaceful and law-abiding and had owned his saloon five months. Several years ago he came from Palermo, from whence have hailed many of those responsible for recent murders in New York. It was at No. 10 First street, in Gunther's alley, that Salvatore Guiliano was killed, just a week ago. The two mysterious dynamite explosions were at No. 215 and 13 Union street. It was in the same block that the "barrel" murder was committed.

On the Way to Wealth.

(From the Leadville (Ind.) Observer.) Friday morning we had the pleasure of writing a receipt for Mr. Adam Hanna, a well-known and prosperous farmer, who resides down along Springtown pike, and who is one of our regular pay-in-advance subscribers. By the way, you will see Adam coming into town some of these days, red enough to go on the retired list—that is, if he stays in the sheep business much longer. He has a fine lot of sheep, and two of the ewes have a total of seven live, healthy lambs. Perhaps we should state that one ewe is the mother of three and the other four, and that the lamb is not two and five nor one and six. Quadruplet or double twine are rarities, even among sheep.

Women Veterans of the Stage to Give Services to the P. W. L. Bazaar.

EMILY RIGEL

MRS. W. G. JONES

A feature of the annual bazaar of the Professional Woman's League, to be held at the Waldorf-Astoria next Friday and Saturday afternoons and evenings, will be the attendance of four veteran actresses who have in their times moved to tears or laughter hundreds of thousands of playgoers in the United States.

They have volunteered their services for the worthy cause of raising money for those who have not been as fortunate as they in the theatrical profession.

Mrs. W. G. Jones, the oldest living actress, will have charge of the photograph booth; Mrs. Sol Smith will manage the Oriental booth; Bertha Welby will direct the fancy work booth, and

EMILY RIGEL
Emily Rigel will lend the magic of her presence to the racing wheel.

INTERBOROUGH'S TRAFFIC FARCE

Railroad Commission's Order to Increase Service Meets Poor "Endeavor."

Tens of thousands of Subway passengers, who suffered serious inconvenience yesterday as the result of a series of blockades, and the further fact that no preparations had been made for winter traffic, took no chances to-day, but started downtown at hours earlier than usual. Incidentally the Interborough made a farcical "endeavor" to carry out the order of the State Railroad Commission to increase the service on the Third and Second avenue "L" lines during the rush periods.

Only two trains were added, and the number of cars was increased from six to seven on Third avenue, but in Second avenue five cars will continue to be run, despite the many thousands of protests.

Stalls throughout the city were frequent during the entire day, but in the evening rush hour there was a complete block on the Subway in both directions which lasted fully an hour. The accident was caused by a Lenox avenue train jumping the track under Broadway, just above Ninety-sixth street.

No one was injured, although there was great excitement and many passengers tried to leave the cars, which would have endangered their lives, as third rails are promiscuous and deadly in that vicinity. No explanation of the cause of the accident has been given out.

Trains following were turned back on a switch south of the station, and sent back downtown.

Whites and Their Wives.

(From the Detroit Journal.)

Geronimo, the Apache chief, has gotten married for the eighth time.

"You are a brave man, Geronimo, to marry so often," a palatse said the other day to the old warrior.

"Brave? Not at all," returned Geronimo.

"The fact of the matter is that an Indian is master in his own house, and marriage hasn't the terror for him that it has for a white."

"Whites and their wives," Geronimo chuckled.

"Why, I once went to a tailor's shop in Washington with a Congressman who wanted to order a new suit."

"The Congressman selected the cloth, and the tailor measured him, calling out dimensions to a clerk with a book. After the measuring the tailor said:

"Married or single, sir?"

"Married," replied the Congressman.

"One pocket concealed in lining of vest," the tailor bade the clerk.
